As proof of an assertion that the liquor traffic had more influence than the churches, he called attention to an unsuccessful effort of several leading congregations in this city to prevent a saloon from being opened in the vicinity of their meeting houses.

Mr. Moore said in part:

"There are twin devils that I wish o discuss—the liquor devil and the devil of gambling. Let us notice the rapacity of this liquor traffic. It lays its blighting touch upon the body and the soul as well. It takes the strong her tears. man and makes him weak; unfits him to discharge his duty as laborer and bread-winner. The question arises, who is responsible for these open poolrooms? There seems to be a difficulty in referring the responsibility to anyone because of the divided powers of our officials, but it seems to me that the person who is responsible, or at least should be held to be responsible until he shows where the responsibility lies, is our Mayor. The mob attempted to sack the market buildings and stopped all street traffic. The factories and shops in the city have been closed. Groups of women bearing banners are taking a prominent part in the disturbances. Several battalions of troops are clear-

Replying, Senor Gonzalez, Minister of the Interior, said that the prefect of Barcelena was not able to send a police commissary to each of the seventytwo simultaneous strikers' meetings in that city. After further explanations Senor Gonzalez introduced a bill asking the Chamber to authorize the suspension of constitutional guaranty

When Ingersoll taught school there he was a young man, living with his parents, his father being a Presbyteran preacher there. He was considered somewhat lazy by his associate for the reason that he would not do hard, dirty work. He was continually reading, and in the summer would spend considerable time up That shine in heaven's aw, blue, ing around on the grass devouring a book. It became necessary for him to do something to contribute to his own support and he took to school teaching.

Uncle "Bobbie" Davisson remem bers that when Ingersoll taught he had what he styled the "Ingersoll Half Dollar," which was a sort of medal given to the pupil to wear who stood at the head of the class. It was made of a silver half dollar, and the pupils all jealously strove to win it. At the close of the term some of the pupils were unable to pay their tuition, and Bob very freely told them not to worry, that he did not care for the money. While he was teaching he was also reading law and would spend the noon hour pouring over some musty law volume. In good weather he would lounge on the grass under a big tree back of the house and read. Sometimes he would go to sleep after reading a book, and upon waking could frequently repeat almost everything he had read, so good was his memory. However, he was not then considered anything unusual in point of intellect, further than that he was thought to be a bright young school teacher and had a great longing for engaging in debates of all kinds. He always had ideas on every subject, and was usually ready to express them in a convincing manner.

South Carolinian Defends Conduct on Saturday--Lie Direct the First Blow.

Washington, Feb. 24 -The President to-day withdrew his invitation extended to Senator Tillman of South Carolina to attend the dinner given to-night in honor of Prince Henry of Prussia at the White House. It is stated that this action on the part of the President was made necessary from the fact that it was due to the occurrences on the floor of the senate last Saturday, when the Senator from South Carolina was declared in contempt of the Senate.

He Writes Well.

Says the Owensboro Inquirer: One of the Ohio county bank robbers, who is in jail here, is H. L. Marsh, or rather, that is the name he gives. He is the man who formerly lived in Hopkinsville, Mr. M. Gant has called on him and recognized him, but agreed not to give his real name. Marsh wrote Mr. Gant a letter, asking him to send some magazines or other reading matter of good quality to the jail, as the time passed very heavily with him. The penmanship of the letter is very fine, the language is good and the composition is perfect. The wonder is that he should be a burglar instead of making a living by his pen in another way.

Dr. LaBord's greatest success has been achieved by the use of the "CARONIA WAFER."
